Terms and conditions for press accreditation NorthSide 2023

If you wish to cover NorthSide for a media, you have to apply for a press accreditation.

An accreditation gives journalists and photographers access to the festival and to the enclosed press zone with workstations available.

All medias are welcome to apply, but we cannot guarantee an accreditation to everyone.

There are several things you can do to improve your chances of being accredited.

You can:

- Give a serious description of why you want an accreditation for NorthSide and what your editorial goal with the accreditation is: How do you plan to cover the festival? Which audience do you communicate to? What will be your focus area(s)? Approximately how many articles/reviews/pictures/posts/videos/radio broadcasts etc. do you imagine producing?
- Apply in good time if you have plans of larger productions during the festival (e.g., if you plan to record video and/or sound).
- Apply within the deadline.

Terms and conditions for press accreditations for NorthSide:

- The press accreditation is personal and can under no circumstances be passed on to others. If you have been prevented from participating after you have received a press accreditation, please write to presse@downthedrain.dk as soon as possible.
- You must show respect to the other journalists and photographers in the press zone and to the festival's employees, volunteers and of course guests.
- You must ensure that you comply with GDPR rules (e.g., in relation to photography on the site)
- You must submit the products that have come out of your coverage of the festival (articles, reviews, videos, podcast episodes, etc.) by September 30, 2023. Please send these to presse@downthedrain.dk.
- You must comply with the general safety rules on the site. Read more on https://northside.dk/en/faq-en/
- If these rules are not complied with, we reserve the right to cancel your accreditation with immediate effect.
